The Mexican Outrage.

Even Mexican banditry has produced few horrors to compare with the wrecking and burning of a train and the slaughter of scores of passengers. If the Calle government was right some months ago in announcing that nothing was under way in the country resembling a revolution, appearances are strangely deceptive. Elsewhere such occurrences would pass for a proof of a singularly bitter and barbaric type of warfare.

Profit-Earning Investments.

All four of the utility companies earned surpluses during the last three months, piling up a total of $150,000. This will go to reduce the amount that has to be raised by taxation and to provide gains for the rest of the year would bring relief to the tax-payers of more than a half million dollars. With the coming of long days and motoring weather the electric light system and the street railway are likely to show a falling off in income, and the year's total may fall under the half-million mark. That the power companies are not in a position to earn in the years past, is certain. These enterprises continue to justify the investment that was made in them, and to bear convincing evidence that they are capably managed.

A Criminal Is a Criminal.

A magistrate in Ottawa sentenced five Chinese men to terms of from eight months to a year and a day, offering the same to school girls under 14 years of age. In explaining the lightness of the punishment he said there is no country where justice is more fairly administered than Canada. His idea evidently was to impress the offenders that there is no place to which they could go because they happened to be Chinese.

Desirable as it may be to establish that there is neither justice nor safety in giving residents of that or any other race the notion that they can commit crimes in Canada and count upon getting treated more leniently than others. That is the inference that Chinese residents of Canada are invited to draw from the trifling sentence imposed and the apologetic manner of the magistrate.

Better Pave the Strips.

Edmonton people may not be altogether surprised if they learn from some enterprising Uncle Sam that one of these days that the name of last Monday will be synonymous with city pavement. What happened, of course, was that water from the melting snow got under the paved strip between the rails in places, froze, and heaved up chunks large and small. On Jasper and other important streets there was already long stretches where the paving between the rails had given way and been taken out, and these have been considerably lengthened.

These unpaved strips are unsightly. They are more menacing than useful for automobile and other traffic. And they provide openings by which the water can get under the remaining pavement with results similar to those of the frozen strips when they first came in. Spring thus. It would probably be cheaper to pave these strips than leave them unpaved, for they are centres from which the disintegration is bound to spread.

Exporting Money and Importing Coal.

Canada did not import coal from the United States to the value of $10,000,000. The estimated value of all the coal mined in Canada in 1925 was $49,000,000. For the first half of last year, for which figures are available, the total was $25,000,000. The conclusion seems trustworthy that Canada paid about $10,000,000 more last year to the United States than they paid for Canadian coal.

From which some highly interesting deductions are to be drawn. United States capital derived more profits from selling coal in Canada last year than Canadian capital derived from the year before. More coal was imported into the United States in mine coal for sale in Canada than the Canadian mines could find work for. More Canadian money went into circulation in the United States last year, in payment for coal, than went into circulation in Canada.

Canadian capital would have a better chance of earning dividends by selling coal in Canada if it was invested in United States coal mines. Canadian coal miners would have a better chance of making wages digging coal for Canadian users if they did their mining in the United States. Canadian coal miners would stand a chance to get more of the "coal money" paid by Canadian house-holders if their stores were located in Ohio or Pennsylvania than they have with stores located in Canada.

These are practical applications and implications of the impolicy of talking about developing Canada's resources but shipping money to the United States to pay for coal. They serve to indicate the importance of filling Canada's coal bins with the product of Canada's mines, and of keeping in Canada the scores of millions of dollars which are shipped out every year to pay wages, dividends and profits to the coal miners, mine-owners, and business interests of the United States.

The Five-Year Old

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Here's a busy little thing, That's always on the swing, Fast forever on the swing, Every forever much aglow. Who's this?—It's the poor pride He's so snug and satisfied! Here's a little child of ours, Who's just as snug and satisfied.

He's a good boy, though, and more Joyous thoughts from day to day Than the need of bread or grain.

Here's a boy who wakes at dawn With the rooster, when the sun Starts in again to play With the green, the red, the blue. While the green, the red, and eight Hail to sparkling sunny skies; Don't you think he's snug and satisfied? Like a crippled man or ill, Having thought of joy to say? As a boy, he's snug and satisfied.

Should she get that green up out Then those little legs so stout Soon would run out of breath And the boy would be snuffed out. He would wither in an hour Under the sun's hot, hot power. If he would he couldn't do All the things which want him to live. And the boy would be snug and satisfied.

He thinks himself, but oh, Are his eyes with mirth aglow? Does he go to school? Does he know Something new he wants to learn? Does his joy go so fast, so slow? The boy doesn't know indeed? Does he go so much of grace In his schoolroom, or in his play? No, the richest soul alive is a little child of ours.

The Wall Street Bogey

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Mr. Jason Woodbridge, director of publishing of the New York Stock Exchange, in a recent address said:

"We pity primitive people who personify the destructive elements of nature, and yet this antithetical tendency has been shown by so-called文明人 (civilized people) in their attitude toward Wall Street, plotting day and night to rob the world of its wealth."

It is time the world and somewhat the popular press to abuse Wall Street, is coming to a standstill against the wisdom of the people. To talk of certain wealth and manifestations of great wealth is quite

Wall Street is nothing but a market, and the greatest market in the world for the exchange of goods. Men's reputations are made or marred upon the word of their honor, and of their connections and they are rarely betrayed.

Wall Street is a board of morality among stock brokers from a commercial point of view is as high as in other quarters.

Do You Remember?

FOURTY YEARS AGO

From the Edmonton Bulletin, Saturday April 16, 1887.

Complaint has been made that several dogs have been shot at the dog or his owner, and it is anything but safe to go about with a dog. The dogs are often fired in chance directions at chance hours, for the dogs are the chief enemies of the people, or as well as the animals which they are. Owing to this being no municipality here, nothing can be done.

Chilcotin correspondence of the Kamloops Sentinel shows that the thermometer went down to 60° on Saturday morning, and the weather was so cold that every head of stock left on the range had to be shod.

The Vancouver papers say that the Chinese in that town have been greatly overestimated, and the British Consul here has called a conference of the Chinese here to call attention to the rights of the town. They further note, however, that they do not intend to allow the name of a gang of Chinese from Victoria to clear the town.

Chinese police are likely to be provided with Nordenfeldt guns.

Fourty years ago, gold had been struck in the Transvaal, South Africa. There is quite a rush to the gold mining districts.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

REAL ESTATE DEAL CAUSES LIBEL MISTRIAL

Dealer Testifies Conversation With Juror Didn't Concern Sapiro Case

Detroit, Mich., April 23.—Robert Miller, a real estate dealer, Friday swore out a statement to the effect that the conversation between J. (Kid) Miller and Mrs. Cora Hoffman, accused of misconduct as a juror in the Sapiro-Fox trial, concerned a real estate deal in which Mrs. Hoffman and her husband were interested.

"We held the key to an apartment here and the apartment was ours. We sold on contract eight weeks ago to the Hoffmans for $16,000 of which $10,000 was down and the balance is due in monthly payments of $100, which sum we are due at the end of April."

Miller Was Agent

"In this transaction, Miller and another man whom I do not recall, were sole agents."

"We paid our share in cash, and I think we got $1,000 cash and about $200 in cash and the balance to be paid by promissory note. The note was to be paid in April."

"In asking for a renewal of the note, Mrs. Hoffman said that he expected to pay this note by arranging a mortgage of $12,000 on the apartment."

Attended Libel Trial

Miller did attend the Sapiro-Fox trial, however, and when he saw Mrs. Hoffman and he communicated with her there as a matter of courtesy, he said.

He tells me he did have a conversation with her, but this mortise in the public corridor.

"The day after," Miller was quoted as saying, "I received a telegram from my office to come to my office and told me the story."

Thomas Wilcox, chief of the Detroit branch of the department of justice, who is in charge of the investigation upon instructions of Judge Sapiro, said that the allegations were first presented to the judge, declined to present the case to the grand jury, and was ready for submission to the court.

Attorneys for the plaintiff and defendants in the libel suit will meet April 26 with Federal Judge Fred M. Vinson, presiding, to set the date for a new trial.

A new trial date has not been set, but the defense has agreed to a new trial date.

William J. Gallagher, chief of counsel for the plaintiff, made the following statement after the conference:

Great Expectations

"We expect that there is no money available with which to employ a new jury for immediate trial. We expect that the court will itself propose that each side compromise in order to have a trial even though it may not be to our own advantage. The chief of the court was asked to receive money for that purpose."

"It is our wish to go on with the trial and we will do so," said Edward Hanley, counsel for the defense.

In the absence of Senator George A. Reed, who was taken ill, Senator Ford was present on Wednesday night after a full day of work.

Mr. Hanley is acting as chief of counsel for the defense.

Large Liquor Company Gives Up Business

Canadian Press

WINDSOR, Ont., April 23.—One big company which was engaged in the liquor business in the United States customs with Canadian liquor appears to have gone out of business, according to the Canadian Press.

This is the Mexico Export company. Frank McCoy, president, before the royal commission on Wednesday, evidence was obtained that the company had been doing a good business.

McCoy, however, denied that he had sold the export business for nearly all Canadian liquor to a New York shop about a week ago. Friday the names of four men who, according to the royal commission, are interested in the Mexican company, were also in the courtroom. Wards was witness, they failed to respond.

The Mexican company, in an attempt to appear, the commission will try other means to prevail upon them to come.

Instructions for 13th-14th Days In McCoy Reducing Course

Thousands Have Benefited From This Tested Plan, Which Is Proving Exceedingly Popular in Edmonton

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

Instruction to be followed on Sunday

Every morning you are to take your calisthenic exercises, using all of the ones I have given you in the first of the book. After these exercises with a cold shower bath, if your skin responds properly, otherwise, take a warm shower bath.

Then, take a walk, or a ride, or a walk off the excess weight around your hips. None of the other exercises will be of any use unless you are reducing weight through this part of your body.

—One boiled egg, two or three pieces of Triscuit. Small or staved prunes.

Take your two-mile walk, or run, now morning, the same as usual, if you have not yet started. Walks which I am advising you to take are not to be taken in the same manner as you have been. You must take a walk, not neglect this, as you have been doing.

After running, take your cold bath.

—One glassful of orange juice, with water as desired.

Take your regular walk, walking briskly, not slowly, as you have been doing.

—A glassful of plain warm water.

After the exercise, your time for walking each day by adding one or two miles to the distance you will soon be walking three or four miles a day.

Upon returning from your walk, take all of the exercises as you have been doing.

—Take a cold bath.

—Take a walk, or a ride, or a walk off the excess weight around your hips.

None of the other exercises will be of any use unless you are reducing weight through this part of your body.

Theatre and Movie Gossip

MONTDAY AT EMPRESS.

Eddie Cantor, who makes his special screen appearance at the Empress Theatre for the first half of next week, has a secret which he keeps behind him.

Broadway applied him for a role in a series of plays when he sought success on the silver sheet. His first appearance was as a blackface comedian on the boards, and when he was discovered, people laughed at his antics in the Elizabeth production of "Old Maids." A series of exposures of Eddie Cantor got his laughs in a whole series of plays, and when the people every night across the footlights, Cantor learned the secret of his success.

In 1916, he appeared in "Country Comin' Up" at the Alhambra. A month later, Julius Flesher Ziegfeld, Jr., who was then in the business, saw his rise to footlight fame. Ziegfeld, in turn, "kid" him, bringing him in with him, when Flesher made ready to film that production. He was given a part in "The Kid Brother," and his success with this picture is a well-known fact.

Eddie Cantor is a man of versatility. He combines his comedy and his singing. The title of "Special Delivery" is his own. The story of his career is his own, richly.

Supporting Cantor in "Special Delivery" are Juhana Rautio, for three years Harold Lloyd's leading woman, and Eddie's own mother. Thus the family as one of the screen's "best" has been.

COMING TO CAPITOL

Julia's Willingness to Help Brings Her to Stardom

Julia Faye

By DAN THOMAS
EMPRESS THEATRE, HOLLYWOOD, Calif., April 22.

"Miss Faye, I wonder if you would like to come to the Empire Theatre this afternoon?"

Julia Faye always a good soul, but one who has been known to refuse assistance to others, was asked to come to the Empire to help Julia doing everything possible to help Julia do her best.

After a day or two the casting director again put in a call for Miss Faye.

"I have never even thought of you for that part," said the casting director.

"But I believe you're just the one I want on, because she did a good turn in Julia Faye is to play the rôle of the Turkish harem wife in "The Bouquet in "Briander Gertie."

The picture will be shown at the Empire on April 25.

"I am sure you will be a tremendous hit in which she scores a tremendous hit. I will have known for several weeks that I might get a chance to play for you, but I would like to say something for you if it would be terribilis."

Miss Faye remarked, "I am not a good actress, but I am a good dancer."

Julia Faye is a good dancer, and the rôle, so I know there is no doubt of her ability.

"I was just a stroke of luck that I was asked to help with that first chance to get the part. I have been fighting for it ever since. That's the reason I am here, and I am here to stay."

As a result, I am always fighting for it, and I am always fighting for it."

"I am always fighting for it," said the director.

Call for the AUTOIST

Ingenious Machines Assure Accuracy In Turning Out Important Parts

This is the fifth of a series of articles on "How the Modern Automobile is made."

By ISRAEL KLEIN

The greatest expenditure demanded in the manufacture of the automobile is in the production of the moving parts.

These are cut and tools used that cut to the exact measurement and to the exact degree of error. The machines range from the heavy, cumbersome drilling and milling machines to the small and precise lathes and grinding machines that have to be used as cutting surfaces.

Only the setting of the machinery is left to the skill of the operator who needs only his supervision and the work of replacing pieces as each part is cut.

Mechanical Hands.

The machine is a hand and the gray iron cylinder, block, coming from the foundry, meet a battery of fine tools that cut the metal to the exact size in their first course through the factory. Each is handled as a workman would handle a hand tool.

They are cut down to size. The blocks are then turned and ground smooth. They are twisted and turned by powerful mechanical hands that have to be used in the operations.

Finally, they are set into a drilling machine where as many holes as there are in the block are made in each block in a few seconds.

In grinding and boring, machines work in baths of lard and water, and in the case of pure oil, to remove the surface surfaces of the metal that is being cut.

The last and final operation is cleaning of impurities and brought back for further use.

The moving parts of the automobile plant are in the manufacture of the parts that go into the crankcase, the engine block, the cylinder, the crankshaft, the camshaft, the pistons, piston rods, wrist pins and valves.

From Front to End.

The crankshaft, camshaft and piston or connecting rods are dropped into the engine block, forged "hot" under a pressure of 10,000 pounds per square inch by an electric or a steam drop press.

The other parts are castings or cut from steel, aluminum, brass, copper and chromium, or of nickel and gray iron, to give them toughness and strength.

The forged piece is first cut roughly to size and then the machine machines take hold.

The metal is forced under great heat into the brass bearing surfaces of the engine block and cylinder.

After this, it is taken to a lathe and turned down to size. After it is trimmed down it is taken to a diamond cutting machine and cut with a cutting tool. This diamond cuts down to size, but it is not exact, so the true size can be detected.

Then it is taken to a fine cutting machine to be cut to size.

This is one of the many operations that are required to make them for their extreme hardness to cut them fine and smoothness of surfaces and to make them last longer.

There is a great deal of work to be done to make the engine work.

Where extremely fine grinding has to be done, the operator uses another important enshrine part, a diamond wheel to cut the edge of the workpiece.

There is a diamond wheel and the lights, but one that takes all the juice from the wheel and the lights instead of only parts of it.

Ordinarily the generator supplies power to the battery, while the engine is running, but when the system of the ignition system fully charged the battery, the engine will stop.

The fault must lie somewhere between the battery and the engine. In fact, it does. A sure sign is the presence of a good head light or other bulb.

This shows a dead short between the two terminals of the battery and the lights, but one that takes all the juice from the battery and the lights instead of only parts of it.

That needn't be a long wire in this case, but it may be. It may be a wire on terminal on the battery, or one so covered with corrosion that it can't be disconnected.

The battery terminal of the generator is the one that is connected with the engine. With the leads disconnected, the battery will not be charged.

The terminal should be disconnected and both the wires and battery connections should be checked.

A cracked or broken battery terminal may be disconnected and the lead disconnected. It must be tight.

If loose, the battery needs repair. If cracked, the lead must be replaced by a carman. Disconnection of the battery terminal of the generator by a responsible garage mechanic will disconnect the terminal by jerking and pulling it off. The operator should use a simple instrument called a "crimping tool" to crimp the terminal to the wire.

If the terminal is to be disconnected at home, it should be pried up and carefully to avoid cracking.

All that you want in a moderately-priced car, Chevrolet gives you, at NEW, LOWER PRICES, the lowest for which Chevrolet has ever been sold in Canada.

The Polly Parrots Are Not All Poor

Upon the sanity of the rich largely depends this nation's welfare. If the wealthy parade price-tags as their measure of values, they encourage others to worship false ideals and to live beyond their means. That is bad economics.

We believe our championing of common sense in automobile buying will receive the endorsement of substantial opinion.

A motor car is first and last a vehicle for personal transportation. As such it is an indispensable utility.

Value depends alone upon what the car does, how it does it and how long it endures . . . upon how well it meets your requirements.

A rapidly increasing number of the wealthiest people are driving Auburn cars because they approve of our method of selling.

We say, "Compare and drive the new Auburn Straight Eight, and if it does not give and do all things you demand of a car, better than any other, you will not be asked to buy."

Why pay more than Auburn prices when you get a better automobile in the Auburn? One proof is that it is better is the fact that it beat the stock car record for 1000 miles by more than  $\frac{1}{2}$  miles per hour. Auburn is officially America's Fastest Stock car.

Other proofs that it IS better are BUILT into the CAR ITSELF.

DAUGHTERS OF MIDAS

by Gina Gastin

He helped her into her coat, his hands gentle upon her shoulders.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

T. Q. CURTIS, millionaire developer of the new city, has three girls from his establishment come into his home as visitors, one of whom he believes they have worthy ambitions and he wants to help them further.

BILLIE WELLS is the only one he has been able to conciliate. She wants to become a actress and EDWARD SHELTON is engaged to the man's general under false pretenses.

Billy overcomes Mr. Curtis by his charm and the other two girls and his daughter when the year is up, and in order not to have to leave him, she has the other girls, she tells them, who are to play the part of the other girls and would drop out of the race. She has the girls drop out of the fact that to be adopted by old Curtis is to be adopted with advantages with DAL ROMAINE, while when she is instructed to stay with him, she is to be adopted with WILLIE, tenderly remembers. CLAY CURTIS, the son of the millionaire, has discontinued himself and to have a good time, has joined the poor part of the city, working in an automobile factory in the evenings.

S. and Winnie feel that Billy has the best of them, and to have her play the part of Winnie, who is studying secretarial work, she has the girls drop out of him in the evenings. Old Curtis arranges for the two housekeepers' children to take private kindergarten lessons.

Billie, Wells, and Winnie are to be the girls to come up for the purpose. Although Natalie is to be the girl to be adopted, she reveals the fact and thinks old T. Q. is to be the girl to be adopted because of her infatuation for Romaine. She has agreed to cut off her hair and spend the day with him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX

Dal Romaine, called for Billie at 6 o'clock, drove her in his long, low-slung, open-top roadster to the business district of Colgate. They waited discreetly at the curb while the girl, who had a balance of $500, then, smiling mysteriously, asked him a few questions, turned into West Seventh, which was becoming the most fashionable street in the city.

"Here we are!" he parked the car in front of a small, dingy-looking shop. Small cold letters incomprehensibly printed on the plate glass window informed him that that it was the establishment of Madame Dubois.

"It looks frightfully expensive," Billie said, as she followed him in.

"Don't you worry," said Dal, "I paid down on her. The only important thing is for you to have the dress made. I'll pay for it."

"I promise to conceal it until I could bring you in to see it. We will go to see it this evening," Dal said, as he planned to the girl.

"This way, please," Madame Dubois said, as she led the girl up the stairs, smiling impishly into Dal's eyes.

They found Madame Dubois awaiting them in a smaller room behind the shop. She was a woman of middle age with a kindly smile, and Dal was forward with outstretched hands to welcome her as a valued friend. She was the Dal, a June of a woman, with deep brown eyes and a gentle smile.

"It is so good of you to bring the little girl in to see the dress. It was designed. It sometimes happens that way, Miss Wells. She is a good girl, and I have seen her own bread, white pâtes.

LITTLE JOE

A GIRL IS JUDGED BY THE COMPANY SHE KEEPS TOO LATE.

Three hundred dollars she paid the bills from the rent with which she had been able to pay most impudently into Madame Dubois' well-known dress shop. She was wearing the most expensively dressed crepe, which she could not bear to take it off. If she belonged to the Dal, she would have given him the money to buy her a new coat, her hands were so cold.

As they were leaving the shop, the girl who evidently was the person who evidently owned the shop, a woman of middle age, opened the door for them.

"My dear," she spoke softly, in the same tone of voice as the place demanded. "Tell her the cost of the dress, that you helped her to pay it off."

A shade of anger settled on Dal Romaine's face, and he cast a shadow of a half smile. He did not look at Billie until she had gone for at least five minutes through the downtown hills.

"When he did turn he was smiling
